The Chapel is not a museum. It is a living entity that is here to provide the community with a sense of history and celebration.

The Chapel is now a public building and is available for weddings, baptisms, naming ceremonies and social functions, with pew seating for 100 people. The Christening font, handcrafted from famous Angaston marble and the immersion pool are available and the beautiful handcrafted organ produces some wonderful sounds.

Its remarkably good acoustics make the Chapel an ideal venue for concerts and recitals. The facilities are often used during the Barossa Music Festival. The spacious landscaped surrounds provide an ideal setting for outdoor activities.

The Old Union Chapel
Penrice Road, Angaston

Contact
Barossa Council – phone 8563 8444
Tours by arrangement

Photography Courtesy of Doug Coats
The Old Union Chapel was built in 1844 under the guidance and financial support of the Angas family. For more than 150 years the Chapel has served the community in many different ways.

It has been used as a meeting place, a fruit storage shed, shearing shed and shelter for a local family immediately after World War II.

George Fife Angas, a Baptist, strongly believed in freedom of worship. The Chapel Trust deed provided for this through its inter-denominational basis. This tradition continues today.

A visit to the Chapel is a visit back in time. Although a major restoration was undertaken in 1989–1994 much of the original building still exists, like the 150 year old Onionwood timber flooring.